Ask The Man Who Lives There!

Visitors ask, "Is it Spout Spring or Spout Springs?" Here's the man who knows, because he lives in sight of the original "Spout Spring" from which the village got its name. He is W. E. Dickerson who for many, many years has operated Dickerson's Store. In the store are old-time cabinets and containers to hold general store items such as thread, nails – cookies for a sweet tooth, Mr. Dickerson and his wife(now deceased) were parents of five daughters, and he says with justifiable pride that all five were pretty enough "to be in any beauty contest." He greets customers with dignity, friendliness and courtesy which, hopefully, will never go out of style. And "Spout Spring"? It was located on the old stagecoach road between Richmond and Lynchburg. Just a short distance from Dickerson's Store there was a stagecoach inn, and horses were watered from a spring which emerged through a tree trunk; hence, the name, "Spout Spring." In Dickerson's Store there is an item not asked for anymore, an "Anti-rattler and bolt holder", a black object about four inches long – sold to buggy owners who wanted less "rattle" with their ride over country lanes and bridges.

Smokey Says:

Long Drink On Labor Day

Used to be that boys had to carry water to the elephant – but not in Appomattox, thanks to the Volunteer Fire Company and their 500 gallon tanker. With Royson Brothers' circus in town Labor Day for the Spout Spring Ruritan sponsored show, these youthful workers helped to raise the "big top" and found other chores to do, as well, before the 2 p.m. and the 8 p.m. shows. Site of the circus was the former golf course layout just west of the town of Appomattox on Rt. 460. Drivers and families watching the activity could also drive up to the Jaycee "Safety Stop" for coffee or cokes before going on their way.
